AMUSEMENTS.

That charming play "When We Were 21," as interpreted by a strong company, is meeting with overflowing houses everywhere. The story is replete with humor, and the audience alternate the evening in laughter and tears. It is no unusual thing for the management to receive letters from people who have witnessed the performance and who frankly write the play has not only opened their hearts, but their pocket-books as well, in imitation of the kindly Dick Carewe and his "Trinity." As to the acting in this glorious play, there is only one thing to be said; it is perfect.

"When We Were 21" company will appear at the Grand on next Monday, and from all the newspaper notices received by Manager Porter, it is safe to say that no other attraction will equal this. Carriages may be ordered for 10:40.

Most managers object to having husbands and wives in their employ, but Messrs. Morris & Hall take an entirely different view of the matrimonial question. In their "When We Were 21" Companies they have four married couples: Mr. and Mrs. Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Butler, Mr. and Mrs. Tilton and Mr. and Mrs. Martin. The unmarried ladies of the organizations, Misses Tennant, Booth, Wheatly and Hall are rather pleased at the liberal views of the management, as it permits each young lady to have at least six Cavaliers, who would no doubt be willing to cast down their cloaks (if they wore them) as Raleigh did for Elizabeth.

"King Dodo" is the kind of a beauty show which is in great demand at this time. The old-time chorus girl who was so much joked about by the humorists, not without some reason, has been gradually disappearing from the stage, and the call now is for young woman-kind of prepossessing personal appearance. Mr. Savage has done much in securing girls of good appearance for his "King Dodo" company, which will be seen at the Grand on Friday, Jan. 31.

Trouble At Flemingsburg.

The little city of Flemingsburg was in a state of wild excitement Tuesday night, caused by the return of the negro, Chas. Gaskin, who killed James H. Rion on the streets of Flemingsburg, last May. Gaskin has been in the Covington jail for safe keeping since May and was taken home Monday for trial, and the friends of Rion could not withstand the temptation to swing Gaskin to a limb, and at once formed a mob and proceeded to the jail for that purpose and demanded admittance which was refused.

Later in the night one of the guards discovered a burning fuse to a dynamite blast under one corner of the jail, and only saved the wrecking of the building by grabbing it and pulling out the fuse.

Several shots were exchanged between the mob and guards, and one man is said to be seriously hurt.

Several of the guards were shot and several of the mob.

The Sheriff went to Frankfort Wednesday morning and asked for the Frankfort State Militia to be sent to Flemingsburg at once, and the Governor granted his request and ordered the Frankfort Company to go to Flemingsburg, and to stop at Lexington and get the Artillery.

They passed through Paris on a special train about 3:00 o'clock on Wednesday.

The Jailer of Fleming county is Mr. John Morris, and is the father of Mrs. C. W. Fothergill and an uncle of Mr. Dan Morris, of this city.

HIS ONE ROMANCE

By SARAH BEAUMONT KENNEDY.

(Copyrighted, 1900, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

AS HE drove down the street the people of the village knew instinctively that there was something unusual in his appearance; but it took a second look to disclose the nature of the change. Then they knew that his buggy was freshly painted and that he wore his Sunday clothes.

"Laps was trying to turn dude," one lounge said to another.

"Yes, he never used to wear store clothes except Sundays and at funerals," answered the second lounge.

"He's turned down toward Dr. Washburn; reckon he must have a tooth to pull," said the first man.

"Then the doctor will have to take a spell of guessing which tooth it is, for Lap'll never tell him. I never saw such a man for shut mouth in my life. He's so sparing of his words that he just nods his head for yes, and shakes it for no and kinder grunts for howdy. But it don't seem to hurt his business any; he looks mighty prosperous with his new fences and barns and his flower beds. Wonder if he has a notion of marrying?"

The other man laughed. "Marrying! Why, Lap Alston never looked at a woman long enough to recognize her a second time. He's that bashful I believe he'd jump over the moon if a girl so much as spoke to him. Oh, yes; I mean the big ones; he's always been nice enough to the children who go out to his farm nitting and berrying. For instance, there's Emma Washburn; he used to set a heap of store by her when she was little, but he never looks at her since she put on long dresses."

In the meantime Lap drove slowly down the street. He passed Dr. Washburn's gate irresolutely, then turned, came back and dismounting tied his horse and went up to the door with an air of grim determination. Yes, the lounge was no doubt right; it must be a tooth. At the sound of the bell he had himself rung he grew perceptibly paler, and then fell into a cowardly

"THAT WAS A RASH PROMISE."

ly trembling as the doctor opened the door.

"Good afternoon, Lap. Anything the matter?"

"I want to see—" the trembling increased; then his resolution forsook him utterly and he added, lamely: "I'm grinding cider this week; want any?"

"Yes, I think I do. Apple crop good this year?" the dentist asked, detecting the signs of nervousness and thinking he understood. They all acted this way when there was a tooth to be drawn, the big men being worse than the rest. But the question went unanswered, for Lap had braced himself and summoned his resolution anew. There was a certain quaver in his voice, but he asked his question intelligently: "Miss Emma at home?"

"It was not a tooth after all. The astonished doctor hesitated a moment, then said, hastily:

"Yes, I think so. Will you come in?" Lap longed to say no, but he followed the doctor into the parlor. There, being left alone, he sat down and looked about him; and as he did so the tense lines about his mouth relaxed and in their stead there came a smile of intense self-satisfaction.

"I'm sitting here in her parlor, and—my hat's hanging out there on the rack just like it belonged there!"

At his years of waiting came back to him. He seemed to see as in a glass a little girl in a checked apron standing under an apple tree; and then she seemed to grow and grow, but always she had the sunshine on her hair and a smile in her eyes. He had waited for her to grow up, dreaming dreams meanwhile of which the world never guessed. Twenty times he had dressed himself to come here, and as many times his courage had died away. But he was here at last, and he closed his eyes and rehearsed the speeches he meant to make to her. He knew just how she would act, for he had studied the love scenes in a dozen novels. She would blush and stammer, and that meant that she—he opened his eyes, and the smile spread over his face as molasses spreads over the flat surface of a plate. But it disappeared as suddenly as though somewhere in his anatomy an electric button had been touched, for there was a step in the hall, and Emma Washburn said:

"How do you do, Mr. Alston? You wish to see me?"

Lap got up then, and from sheer force of habit nodded his assent

stead of speaking it. For a moment he looked longingly at the door through which she had just entered, as though outside of it lay his one chance of safety; and then he sat down and asked explosively if her hens had begun to lay or whether they were still moulting. And then, without waiting for an answer, he dived into his pocket and drew out two big apples.

"Thank you; they are beauties," Emma said, smiling.

"Come off your tree?"

"My tree?"

"Yes; big one in the corner. I've called it yours ever since—since—"

His throat seemed closing up.

"Since what, Mr. Alston?"

"Since that day when you were little and you said—er—you wanted some blossoms—"

Was his tongue going to be paralyzed? He knew he had started right, that these apples were to lead up to what he had come to say, but something was wrong.

"Blossoms? I don't understand."

"Yes; apple blossoms; and they were out of your reach, and I came along and you said—you said you'd be my—"

but his tongue absolutely refused to pronounce the delicious word. He was thrilling to his finger tips.

"Well, I promised to be your what?"

"Sweetheart." The word was little more than a whisper; it was as if his heart had bubbled up effervescently and overflowed his tongue.

"Your sweetheart? That was a rash promise," and she laughed. In none of the books had the heroine laughed at such a time. "Did you get me the blossoms?"

"Yes, I held you up—" he stammered.

"Oh, yes, you held me up to reach the flowers, I recollect."

"And when I lifted you up, you put your arm around my neck."

He stopped a moment to catch his breath, then went on heroically: "And from that minute I have never thought of anybody else for—a wife."

"Why, this must have happened eight years ago."

"Ten last blossom-time," he said, not daring to look up, for her voice did not tremble as the story books said it should. He was losing hope.

"I was only eight years old then."

"Yes, I know. I've been waiting."

"You were very good to me; I remember you always gave me the biggest apples."

"Yes." But he dared not look up; the story books said she should blush and stammer. The color ebbed out of his face.

"Was I very heavy when you held me up?" she asked, breaking the pause.

"Not above common. In fact I never felt any weight except—your arm on my neck." Then the color came back in a rush. "You kissed me when I put you down," he said, reverently.

"How shockingly improper, and I eight years old!"

How could she laugh over a thing so sacred? Then he tried to recall the plan of his dialogue, and said: "I've planted hollyhocks up and down the front walk."

"Have you?" Again he was rebuffed. He had hoped she would say they were her favorite flowers. All the heroines did such things.

"Do you like snowballs and sweet besies?"

"Not particularly."

And the garden was full of them, planted for her! Presently he stole a look at her, and the misery tightened about his heart. In none of the story books had the girl sat calmly thus while the hero poured out his heart to her. Then he made a last effort.

"I suppose it wouldn't be right to hold a girl to a promise she made when she was only eight years old?"

"Not unless she was willing."

"And you ain't willing?"

"No." Then she added softly: "The fact is, I'm soon to be married."

He got up slowly. "Good-by, Miss Emma; reckon I better go and see your pa again about that cider."

In the hall he looked ruefully at his hat before taking it from the rack.

"Didn't belong here after all," he said, and went away.

"Must have been a bad tooth," the first lounge said as he saw him drive past.

"Yes, Lap looks like he was about yanked in two. Tooth must have broken off."

But it was not a tooth that had broken; it was a lonely, human heart.

Vaccination in the Hub.

It was at a dinner party. The bright young man found himself privileged to sit next to the young woman with beautiful arms and neck. He thought himself the most favored personage in the room. Suddenly his fair companion exhibited signs of nervousness. Two of his very best jokes, saved for a special occasion, passed by unnoticed. Her face wore a look of alarm. Apprehensively the young man gazed at her, and meeting the look she said:

"I am in misery."

"In misery?" echoed the man.

"Yes," she replied. "I was vaccinated the other day, and it has taken beautifully. I could almost scream, it hurts so."

The young man looked at the beautiful arms, and, seeing no mark there, said:

"Why, where were you vaccinated?"

"In Boston," she replied, the smile chasing away the look of pain.—Boston Journal.

So Mamma Said.

Mother—What reason have you for not wanting to marry Mr. Oldgold, my dear?

Daughter—I don't love him, mamma.

"Pshaw! That isn't a reason; it's rank nonsense."—Chicago Daily News

The best educated man or woman is not the one who knows the most of mathematics, Latin, Greek or ancient literature. There was a time when such was necessary, if a person was to be considered highly educated. To-day the educated man or woman is the one who can converse sensibly and intelligently upon political questions, social problems, literature, history, and, to a certain extent, on the scientific questions of the day.

The New Status of Women

By REV. JOSEPH WOOD, Head Master of Harrow School, England

And where do we find this modern form of education? My own observations have led me to say that IT IS AS CHARACTERISTIC OF THE WOMEN OF THE DAY AS OF THE MEN. We have gotten into the habit of considering the feminine sex the weaker of the two mentally and physically, but mentally they are not. Women are as capable of attaining the highest pinnacle of education as men. There may not as many of them reach the goal, but the greatest reason for the difference in numbers is the difference in the numbers of those afforded the opportunity.

The average of feminine intelligence is far higher than it used to be. Not that there are more women of genius than of old, for there are, perhaps, fewer feminine stars of the first magnitude in either the arts, literature or science; but there can be no question that the young matron of five-and-twenty, the young miss of fifteen, has a more intelligent, well-balanced mind, a better judgment, a nicer sense of justice than her prototype of 50 years ago.

To acquire this it is true she has had to discard the mantle of sentimentality. She may not be more agreeable to the average man, but it is certain that, with improved education, wider travel, and the freedom to mix largely in the affairs of the outside world, she has lost her sense of belonging solely to her family, of having their interests solely at heart, and belongs rather to the whole human family.

Women to-day are, in some ways, a new and growing power in all walks of life, and they have honestly earned the recognition that is accorded them. IF I WANT ANYTHING NEATLY, INTELLIGENTLY AND CONSCIENTIOUSLY DONE, I GET A WOMAN TO DO IT.

BALL GAME OF MONTEZUMAS.

How the Ancient Aztecs Amused Themselves with Their Quaint Games.

In the ruins of Uxmal and Chichen Itza, Yucatan, there are the remains of walls that are supposed to have inclosed immense gymnasiums or apartments where many kinds of games were played. Inserted in the longer walls, midway between the ends and 20 feet from the ground, were sculptured stone rings that for a long time baffled archaeologists as to even a conjectural use. The hole in the ring at Chichen is one foot seven inches in diameter, the two great openings exactly face each other, and the walls in which they are inserted are 36 feet thick, 274 feet long and 120 feet apart. Some of the explorers have claimed that this great building was an unfinished temple, since it undoubtedly contained idols set in niches, but it is reasonable to assume that all buildings of such size and importance contained idols, and that they were worshipped and propitiated with gifts in all sports, as well as at times of more serious undertakings, says Modern Mexico. The scholars who claim that this structure was once a great tennis court and ball grounds are supported by Herrera in his account of the diversions of Montezuma. He says: "The king took much delight in seeing sport at ball, which the Spaniards have since prohibited because of the mischief that often happened at it, and was called by them 'tlachtli,' being like our tennis. The ball was made of the gum of a tree that grows in hot countries, which, having holes made in it, distills great white drops that soon harden, and, being molded and worked together, turn as black as pitch. The balls made thereof, though hard and heavy to the hand, did bound and fly as well as our footballs, there being no need to blow them; nor did they use chases, but vied to drive the adverse party that is to hit the ball; the others were to make good or strike it over. They struck it with any part of the body, as it happened, or they could most conveniently, and sometimes he lost that touched it with any other part but his hip. They might strike it every time it rebounded, which it would do several times, one after another, inasmuch that it looked as if it had been alive."

"They played in parties, so many on a side, for a load of mantles, or what the gamesters could afford, at so many scores. They also played for gold and leatherwork, and sometimes they played themselves away, as has been said before. The place where they played was a ground room, long, narrow and light, but wider above than below and higher on the sides than the ends, and they kept it very well plastered and smooth, both the walls and the floor. On the side walls they fixed certain stones, like those of a mill, with a hole quite through the middle just as big as the ball, and he that could strike it through there won the game; and in token of its being an extraordinary success, which rarely happened, he had a right to the cloaks of all the lookers-on by ancient custom and the law among the gamesters, and it was very unpleasant to see that as soon as ever the ball was in the hole the standers-by took to their heels, running away with all their might to save their cloaks, laughing and rejoicing, others securing after them to secure their cloaks for the winner, who was obliged to offer some sacrifice to the idol of the tennis court and the stone through whose hole the ball passed. Every tennis court was a temple, having two idols, the one of gaming, the other of the ball. On a lucky day at midnight they performed certain ceremonies and enchantments on the two lower walls and on the midst of the floor, singing certain songs or ballads, after which a priest of the great temple went with some of their religious men to bless it. He uttered some words, threw the ball about the tennis court four times, and then it was consecrated and might be played in, but not before. The owner of the tennis court, who was always a lord, never played without making some offering and performing certain ceremonies to the idol of gaming, which shows how superstitious they were, since they had such regard to their idols, even in their diversions. Montezuma carried the Spaniards to this court, and was well pleased to see them play at it, as also at cards and dice."

THE DOG'S GRAVEYARD.

Only Regularly Conducted Burying Ground for Canine Pets Is in Scotland.

Edinburgh, Scotland, boasts of the only graveyard where canine pets are regularly interred and their last resting places marked with gravestones. The old cemetery lies, says the Detroit Free Press, on the northern face of the Castle Rock, below St. Margaret's chapel, in the famous old castle of Edinburgh. It was founded a long time ago for the exclusive use of dogs who have been pets of the various regiments which have been quartered at the castle. Almost two score dogs have been buried in it, and the grave of each one is marked; some with stones as large as are used for human beings, and others merely tiny monuments. The cemetery is inclosed by a low wall of stone, and is always pointed out to visitors as the only one of its kind in the world. Not a little interest attaches to the epitaphs which the stones bear. One is inscribed with the grimly humorous line, "Let Sleeping Dogs Lie," while the merits of another animal are borne testimony to by the statement that "He Never Bit a Friend." Almost every British regiment has with it, whether in garrison or afield, a dog who is the pet and mascot of the organization, and to whom the soldiers become sincerely attached. It was because they did not like to have their pets forgotten when they passed away that they established this little cemetery.

Great Singers Off the Stage.

I remember how amused I was when Mme. Kames told me how capitably Jean De Reszke, who undoubtedly is the greatest of living tenors, imitates animal sounds—how he "bow-wow" and "meows" with the same voice which has thrilled thousands. Also how Edouard De Reszke delights in imitating the sounds of various orchestral instruments; but in order to do this he is obliged to assume the pose of the player, so that if he is imitating the sounds of a cello he sits as if he had the instrument between his knees and were drawing a bow across the imaginary strings. As for Plancon, whenever he and the prima donna step out upon the stage together he always whispers to her just as they are leaving the wings: "Now, they are going to see the two most beautiful noses in the company."—Gustav Kobbe, in Woman's Home Companion.

A Foot in China.

In Chinese length measure ten fun equal one tsun, or an inch; ten tsun equal one chih, or the standard treaty foot; that is, the foot arranged by treaty between China and the various foreign powers holding direct intercourse with the empire. This being 14.1 inches, ten chih equal one chang, or about two fathoms, or 12 feet.—Indianapolis News.

Improvement of Havana.

It used to be that the people left Havana in the summer if they could afford it, in order to avoid death by yellow fever. Last summer the city was a delightful place to live in, and there were but 50 cases of yellow fever.—N. Y. Sun.

BIND TWO FARMERS' WEEKLY

THE BOURBON NEWS.

(Entered at the Post-office at Paris, Ky., as second-class mail matter.)
TELEPHONE NO. 124.

PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY
GEO. D. MITCHELL, — EDITOR

J. FIERPONT MORGAN is now engaged in organizing a $50,000,000 electric combine. The public will doubtless be shocked.

The oldest woman in Greenup is dead at the age of 86 years. That is remarkable, for the oldest woman in Paris isn't a day over 30.

JAMES B. MCCREARY was formally elected to the United States Senate on Tuesday, receiving every Democratic vote.

The Rubber trust is the latest financial failure among the great combinations. It seemed to have lacked elasticity like many of its "gum boots."

A CHICAGO girl recently acknowledged that she had prayed for a husband. Then to one she was tired of perpetual motion and had the good sense to add "outside of Chicago."

Now that the Republicans are going to reduce the surplus by reducing the tariff, it will be interesting to see which they repeal first—the tariff on tea, used by millions of people, or the tariff on banks and bonds.

ALEXANDER McDOWEL, chief clerk of the house of representatives, admits that he got his start in life by selling "flash" jewelry in the oil fields of Pennsylvania. He is now quite wealthy and draws a high salary from an administration that sells gold bricks to the people.

THE COURT of Appeals in an opinion rendered, holds that while a physician may sell drugs to his patients, he cannot practice pharmacy for the general public unless he is a regularly qualified pharmacist, holding the certificate required by law.

SENATOR J. B. FORAKER was re-elected by both branches of the General Assembly of Ohio to succeed himself as United States Senator. Ex-Senator Arthur Poe Gorman was elected by the Maryland Assembly to succeed Senator Myrling as United States Senator.

If the percentage of railroad wrecks continued as large as has recently been the rule, Weary Willie may find it expedient to stick to the ties and for a few months thank his lucky stars that he is not burdened with the price of a railroad ticket.

SOME claim that Taylor couldn't have had any hand in Goebel's assassination because he was an elder in the church; but Taylor thought discretion the better part of valor, and wouldn't face the music, elder or no elder. And now we are told that because Powers used to attend Sunday school he must be innocent. The church must not be responsible for such men.

An unsuccessful attempt was made by Jim Howard's attorneys to postpone his trial, but it was a case of "truth crushed to earth shall rise again," and so the trial was ordered to proceed. Judge Cantrell is upon the bench. Nine Democrats, two Republicans, and one Populist form the jury. God grant them wisdom to ferret out and punish the guilty ones in that dark plot.—Richmond Register.

In every subscriber on our list who comes us would resolve this, the first month of a new year, to pay us and do it at once, it would make more people happier than the editor. It would do innumerable things that would better our condition. It is strange that so many people put this matter off from time to time. If you read a paper you should pay for it promptly. How would you like to work three months, six months or a year for your money?

DEMOCRATS in Washington are giving thanks that Kentucky and Maryland, two great border Southern states, are at last redeemed and that two good and true Democrats succeed two Republicans in the United States Senate. The election of Gorman in Maryland and McCreary in Kentucky is at least something for the Democrats, and all good Democrats are glad of the result.

FOUR men practically control the hide business in this country, and these four men put up a quarter of a million, it is said, for the Republican campaign fund and in return were to get up a tariff on hides. They got it against the protest of shoe and leather men, and leather is to be advanced 20 per cent. yet trusts don't affect prices. The consumer pays for it all.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin" should not only be stopped forever at the Lexington opera house, it should be stopped throughout the Union. It is a needless irritation of a wound that should be allowed to heal. It is a vile misrepresentation of the times and was acknowledged so by the author before her death. It is an insult to all Southerners, and gives a false idea of the history of the times to the unformed classes of our great, and thank God, reunited country.—Richmond Register.

STATE NEWS.

The city of Harrodsburg now owns a pair of bloodhounds.

Former Senator William Lindsay, of Kentucky, is a member of the Board of Trustees of the Carnegie institution to be established in Washington City.

Pittsburg, Pa., parties have leased 18,000 acres of clay lands in Greenup and will build firebrick works.

Charles P. Hess, Past Grand Master of Oddfellows, is quite at his home in Louisville, suffering with stomach trouble and rheumatism.

There are now twenty producing oil wells in the Bath County field, and extensive operations are now being planned by several companies.

The Carlisle Democrat complains that free pikes are a burden in that county. They still owe $40,000 of the purchase money and the present levy is insufficient to maintain the pikes, much less pay for them.

The Danville Knights of Pythias will make an active fight to secure the Pythian's Widows and Orphans Home.

Mrs. George Sampson, of Nicholas county, sold over 2,000 dozen eggs during last year which brought her $194.40.

The four-year-old daughter of Rev. Edwards, a Baptist minister in Boyd county, fell into a tub of boiling water and received injuries which proved fatal.

Edgar Boyd, who had his hand badly mashed in a cutting box at Mt. Sterling several days ago, died at his home in that city after horrible sufferings from lockjaw.

The Morgan County Messenger at West Liberty has changed hands. T. F. Scholer, editor of the Advance-Kentuckian, of Morehead, Ky., takes charge. J. H. Caraway, editor of the Messenger, is in very bad health and had to resign after being its editor eleven years.

The Cynthiana Elks will give a big minstrel performance some time in February.

There have recently been ten cases of smallpox in Winchester, but it created scarcely a ripple. People continued to come and go as usual, says the Democrat, the cases were mild in form and there was no excitement. The people of Kentucky have evidently come to their senses at last.

The Elks have decided to hold another fair in Georgetown this year, but the date has not been fixed.

GENERAL NEWS.

During the funeral services over the body of a dead child in a church in Spencer county, Ind., the father had the services stopped, and calling a photographer had the child's picture taken while he held its inanimate body in his arms. When the work was completed the services were resumed.

A sensational scene was enacted at Paoli, Ind., when Miss Eva Miller attempted to horsewhip C. D. Driscoll, a dentist, because of an objectionable letter. Driscoll barricaded himself in his office, but the woman remained firm and the town was aroused. Finally by way of compromise, Driscoll appeared before the crowd, read his letter and apologized. Later a committee called and demanded that he leave town. He agreed to go.

For the first time, paper money contains the likeness of a suicide. The new $10 bill recently issued in Washington contains a picture of Meriwether Lewis, the explorer, who killed himself in a fit of despondency.

STOCK AND CROP.

George H. Phillips, the former "corn king," is pronounced "broke" by his attorney, a recent drop in rye having caused a call for a big margin which Phillips could not meet.

J. C. Grady, of Woodford sold his 2-year-old Hereford bull, Bean Donald V., to O. Harris, of Harris, Missouri, for $1,000.

Wheat is now looking well. The weather has been very unfavorable for it.

Mr. T. P. Hays, of Donerail, has sold his brown colt, Runnells, the great three-year-old by Charader, out of Zingara II by Imp. St. Blaise, to Enoch Winshard, for John Drakes, of Chicago, for $13,000.

Lots of fellows have extravagant ideas about everything except work.

A GOOD PLACE.—There is only one place to go when you want a good smooth shave, a hair cut or a shampoo and that place is at Carl Crawford's barber shop. His assistants are polite and gentlemanly and their work is always the best. His bath rooms are in perfect working order.

You Do, or You Don't Need Glasses

The eye being a rather delicate organ, great care should be exercised in the election of proper glasses. Many believe that glasses should be resorted to only when the sight becomes so defective as not to be able to do without. This is a great mistake which must be combated. Whenever there is unmistakable evidence of the need of their aid, they should be used. A neglect of this rule sometimes produces mischief which results in serious trouble if the course be persisted in. Our Dr. C. H. BOWEN having just returned from taking a special course in Optics from one of the best specialists in New York, is prepared to do the best of work, having the latest improved methods of fitting. Examinations free. Next visit Wednesday, Jan. 8, 1902.

AJ. WINTERS & CO. JEWELERS. Hello, 170 Dr. Bowen at A. J. Winters & Co., 2nd and last Wednesday in each month.

The Howard Case On Trial.

The trial of Jim Howard is in progress at Frankfort, a motion for a continuance being overruled.

On motion of Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin, the Clerk of the Scott County Circuit Court was ordered to bring into the court the c's, letters and telegrams introduced as evidence in the trial of Caleb Powers.

The jury is made up of eleven farmers and one insurance agent. Politically, it is said, they stand as follows: 9 Democrats, 2 Republicans and 1 Populist.

Henry E. Yontsey will not be put on the witness stand.

New Firm.

Don't Live Together.

Constipation and health never go together. DeWitt's Little Early Risers promote easy action of the bowels without distress. "I have been troubled with constipation nine years," says J. O. Greene, D. P. A., Ind. "I have tried many remedies but Little Early Risers give best results."—W. T. Brooks.

Keep your ideal high. You may miss it, but it is better to miss a high one than to hit a low one.

Save something. If you can't, then you had better do without a wife.

Brain Food Nonsense.

Another ridiculous food fad has been branded by the most competent authorities. They have dispelled the silly notion that one kind of food is needed for brain, another for muscles, and still another for bones. A correct diet will not only nourish a particular part of the body, but it will sustain every other part. Yet however good your food may be, its nutriment is destroyed by indigestion or dyspepsia. You must prepare for their appearance or prevent their coming by taking regular doses of Greene's August Flower, the favorite medicine of the healthy millions. A few doses aids digestion, stimulates the liver to healthy action, purifies the blood, and makes you feel buoyant and vigorous. You can get Dr. G. G. Greene's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

Reliable and Gentle.

"A pill's a pill," says the saw. But there are pills and pills. You want a pill which is certain, thorough and gentle. Mustn't gripe. DeWitt's Little Early Risers fill the bill. Purely vegetable. Do not force but assist the bowels to act. Strengthen and invigorate. Small and easy to take. W. T. Brooks.

The man who respects his wife does not turn her into a mendicant. Give her a purse of her own.

James Hicks, a prominent iron manufacturer of Cincinnati, died in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, in New York, of blood poisoning. He went to that city a week ago. A few days later he was licking an envelope, when the sharp edge of the paper cut his lip, and blood poisoning set in.

In all matters of money prepare always for the worst and hope for the best.

"It is a good thing to count the cost," says the Manyoan Philosopher, "but even then a lot of us forget to pay it."

Permanent mutual respect is necessary for a permanent mutual love.

Frank Treadwell, Bennett, Ill., was troubled with kidney disease for two years. He writes: "I had taken several kinds of kidney remedies, but with little benefit. Finally I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and a one dollar bottle cured me."—Clark & Kenney.

There is only one thing worse than quarrels in public. That is coarseness.

A Profitable Investment.

"I was troubled for about seven years with my stomach and in bed half my time," says E. Demick, Somerville, Ind. "I spent about $1,000 and never could get anything to help me until I tried Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. I have taken a few bottles and am entirely well." You don't live by what you eat, but by what you digest and assimilate. If your stomach doesn't digest your food you are really starving. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure does the stomach's work by digesting the food. You don't have to diet. Eat all you want. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure cures all stomach troubles.—W. T. Brooks.

BURGALARIZED.—Burglars gained an entrance to the home of Deputy Sheriff James Burke, on Tuesday night, about 9 o'clock. He places his loss at $50. Later in the afternoon, on Tuesday, a chimney turning out at the residence of Mrs. Rachel Ashbrook, caused an alarm to be sent in. There was no damage.

DOES IT PAY?—Again we call attention to the fact that it pays to advertise in the BOURBON NEWS. On Saturday night last, while returning home after the performance at the opera house, a lady lost a box, containing many valuable articles, among the lot being some jewelry. It was advertised in Tuesday's News, and was returned to its owner by Dr. Campbell, who read the advertisement, and who refused to accept any reward. If you want good results, place a short local in this paper, and "we will do the rest."

A Rare Treat in Store.

Lovers of refined comedy and music, will do well to remember the date of the minstrel show, which is to be given at the Grand Opera House, in this city, on Friday night, Jan. 24, under the auspices of Paris Lodge, No. 373, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, for the benefit of their new home.

The writer has witnessed several rehearsals and is in a position to say that the performance to be given will be all, and more, than is claimed for it. It will possess all the elements necessary for minstrelsy without the addition of the abnormal, coarse and vulgar.

The musical features will be extra good, introducing the well-known Elk quartette in the latest vocal gems of the day. The "legs" to be sprung are all wholesome and side-splitting and will surely drive dull care away. Saxton's orchestra has been specially engaged to play on this occasion, and Prof. Saxton will render several guitar solos.

Mr. Edward Fick and C. B. Bailey, representing the National Promoting Company, of Cincinnati, have charge of the rehearsals, and are thoroughly conversant with the details of arranging minstrel programs, and everything connected with the giving of the show will be carried out in the best manner.

The members of the Elk order have been supplied with tick-its, who will be pleased to furnish their friends with any number they desire to purchase.

One Must Resign.

The Postoffice Department has received information of the marriage of Miss Mattie Boyd, Postmistress at Centerville, Ky., to Jas. M. Current. Miss Mattie, or Mrs. Current, as she is now, will in the near future lose the position she has held for 14 years under different Administrations. Her case has attracted considerable attention, from the fact that she lost both her legs years ago. Notwithstanding this loss, she weighs 220 pounds. Current is a rural mail carrier, 6 feet 6 inches tall, and 23 years of age, while his wife confesses to 53 Summer. Her head about reaches her husband's waist. As the regulations prohibit husbands and wife holding positions in the same service, either Current or his wife will have to resign.

Confederate Notes.

At a meeting of ex-Confederate Senators Coleman's bill asking the State of Kentucky to appropriate $10,000 to maintain a Confederate home was heartily indored. The home is to be built from private subscriptions.

It was determined at a meeting of the Albert Sidney Johnston Chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy to ask the Kentucky Legislature to pass a law prohibiting the production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin" within the limits of the State.

The Confederate veterans of Barren County and the citizens generally are going to make a united effort to secure the location of the Home for Aged and Infirm Confederate Soldiers, for which a fund is now being raised all over the State.

Hon. W. L. Porter, of Glasgow, has offered to donate if the home is located there, the grounds on which is the fort erected by the Federals in the fall of 1863, and captured by the Confederates in the spring of '64 without firing a gun.

CHURCH CHIMES.

Communion services will be observed in the Second Presbyterian Church on next Sunday morning.

People seldom consider the inconvenience they place upon others by stopping in church aisles and conversing with some friend, or for the purpose of waiting for someone. Two or three persons can completely block a church aisle so that those who wish to retire cannot do so, and possibly a hundred or more people are put to an inconvenience. If you must talk stand back from the aisles; if you must wait, do so in the vestibule or where you will bother no one; better than all, when services are dismissed, retire at once, quietly and in order.

Rev. Rutherford Douglas, of Nicholasville, well-known here in Paris, will leave the first of February for Macon, Ga., to take charge of the new Presbyterian church in that city. Mr. Douglas' friends in Kentucky will be sorry to have him leave, but wish him the greatest success in his work in his new field.

The favor table stood just in front of the stand where Saxton's band made music, such as only Saxton can make. The table was a thing of beauty, laden with pretty little favors of many colored baskets of tissue paper, holding sweet violets, hand painted cards with the name "As You Like It" in gold letters. In fact many of the favors were emblematic of the club, in whose honor the entertainment was given. The background to the favor table was graceful, hanging portiers of white, tied to each side with ribbons and bunches of carnations, with huge vases of pink and white carnations in front.

Child Worth Millions.

"My child is worth millions to me," says Mrs. Mary Bird, of Harrisburg, Pa., yet I would have lost her by croup had I not purchased a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure." One Minute Cough Cure is sure cure for coughs, croup and throat and lung troubles. An absolutely safe cough cure which acts immediately. The youngest child can take it with entire safety. The little ones like the taste and remember how often it helped them. Every family should have a bottle of One Minute Cough Cure handy. At this season especially it may be needed suddenly. — W. T. ## Women and Jewels.

Jewels, candy, flowers, man—that is the order of a woman's preferences. Jewels form a magnet of mighty power to the average woman. Even that greatest of all jewels, health, is often ruined in the strenuous efforts to make or save the money to purchase them. If a woman will risk her health to get a coveted gem, then let her fortify herself against the insidious consequences of coughs, colds and bronchial affections by the regular use of Dr. Bosche's German Syrup. It will promptly arrest consumption in its early stages and heal the affected lungs and bronchial tubes and drive the dread disease from the system. It is not a cure all but it is a certain cure for coughs, colds and all bronchial troubles. You can get Dr. G. G. Green's reliable remedies at W. T. Brooks'. Get Green's Special Almanac.

AN ARBITRATION PLAN.

The Matter Presented in the Pan-American Congress.

Disputes Relating to Diplomatic Privileges, Boundaries, Navigation Rights, Validity and Fulfillment of Treaties.

Mexico City, Jan. 15.—The arbitration plans of settling international disputes was presented to the Pan-American conference Wednesday. They are the Hague plans and compulsory plan. The Peruvian delegates told a correspondent Tuesday night that they were entirely satisfied.

It is understood that Mexico has asked the Chilean government to recall Walker Martinez.

The compulsory plan of arbitration, in conjunction with the agreement to adhere to the Hague convention, provides that the contracting nations oblige themselves to submit to the decision of the arbitrators on all controversies pending and future that can not be arranged diplomatically, provided that in the exclusive opinion of either of the interested nations those controversies do not affect their independence or their honor. It is further provided that controversies relating to diplomatic privileges, boundaries, navigation rights and the validity, interpretation and fulfillment of treaties are not to be considered as affecting honor or independence.

The Chilean delegation received a cablegram from the Venezuelan foreign office announcing that it had acceded to Chili's request in withdrawing the Venezuelan delegation from the Pan-American conference. This is a punishment procured by Chili upon the Venezuelan delegation for adhering to the compulsory arbitration plan, which is so distasteful to the Chileans. However, the diplomatic defeat of the Chileans in the matter of arbitration is complete. The Venezuelan delegation has as yet received no confirmation of the Chilean advances.

A motion will be introduced in the Pan-American conference to send a salutation to the new republic of Cuba. It is desired that this motion should come from the United States delegation. The arbitration difficulty is being arranged and will receive finishing touches Wednesday.

The battle of Santiago Bay heads the list of these and the board has decided upon the following other engagements, which, in its opinion, merit special distinctions: Cienfuegos, Cardenas, Santiago (cable cutting expedition), three fights at Manzanillo and Nipe Bay.

Schley at a Banquet.

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 16.—Adm. Schley was entertained by Palestine commandery, Knights Templar, with a reception and a banquet at the Masonic temple Wednesday night. Mrs. Schley was also a guest.

Thrown Out of Work.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Jan. 16.—More than 4,000 persons have been thrown out of work by the stoppage of the intake pipe in Lake Erie, which supplies the city and many of its industries with water. The pipe is filled with slush ice.

PRINCE HENRY'S VISIT.

Rr. Adm. Evans Will Represent Navy at the Reception.

It Is Likely That Maj. Gen. Brooke, Commander of the Department of the East, Will Represent the Army.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Secretary Long Wednesday called Rr. Adm. Robley D. Evans into consultation respecting the coming visit to the United States of Prince Henry, of Germany. The rear admiral has not as yet been given written orders detailing him to act as the representative of the navy at the reception, but that matter has been agreed upon, and Secretary Long charged Adm. Evans with the preparation of a naval programme for the reception. In view of the number of distinguished officers who are now reported to be about to accompany the prince on his visit it is evident that Adm. Evans will require the assistance of a number of junior officers. They will be detailed as occasion requires.

So far the state department is not officially advised of the approaching visit of the prince hence it has done nothing toward arranging a programme for his reception and entertainment. It is assumed at the war department, though orders have not yet been issued, that Maj. Gen. Brooke, as the commander-in-chief of the department of the east, will represent the United States army in the reception.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—German naval officers are eager for assignments to accompany Prince Henry to the United States and many young noblemen are vying influence to bear to obtain appointments for this duty.

The list of possible appointments is already several times larger than the suite which can be sent with Prince Henry. This pressure to secure places may cause the prince's suite to be enlarged. The lack of accommodations for a number of persons on board the Hohenzollern is the real reason why Prince Henry does not sail on the Imperial yacht.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—Prince Henry, with the consent of Emperor William, will give a magnificent banquet at New York on the Hohenzollern, to which the president and the highest officials of the United States will be invited. The Kaiser has selected some splendid silver treasures of his palace to decorate the vessel on the occasion. The silver vessels and decorations are of the most costly workmanship, dating from the renaissance period.

His majesty personally inspected the treasures, and selected the service which is to be used on board the Hohenzollern on special occasions.

Berlin, Jan. 16.—The Frankfurter Zeitung published a remarkable editorial Wednesday reviewing American-German relations. The paper says that these were interrupted friendly until German official circles displayed sympathies with Spain at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war. Since that time, the Frankfurter Zeitung goes on to say, the German government has reached the conviction, somewhat slowly perhaps, that the great republic in the west has become a factor with which Germany must reckon everywhere in Europe, America and Asia. The paper regards the immediate progress of trade is facilitating harmonious co-operation between the two countries.

THE STOLEN JEWELRY.

Valet Kerns, the Suspect, Believed to Have Been Caught.

New York, Jan. 16.—Capt. Titus, of the detective bureau, said late Wednesday night that he had received dispatches from New Orleans which said that a man believed to be the missing valet Kerns, who is accused of having robbed Paul G. Thebaud of $50,000 worth of jewelry here, was under arrest there. He added that he had received a detailed description of the man under arrest and that he believed him to be Kerns. He said the description tallies closely even to the gold tooth Kerns has. He said steps would be taken Thursday towards the complete identification of the arrested man.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—No pawnbroker named Manners is known in Chicago. Only three persons of that name are mentioned in the city directory. One is a laborer, another a janitor and the other a painter.

Married in Jail.

Peoria, Ill., Jan. 16.—George Washington Brown, of Woodford county, aged 21 years, confined in the Peoria jail on a charge of horse stealing, and Miss Lucinda Belle Letters, also of Woodford county, were married at the jail by Rev. Lovett.

Drunken Man's Deed.

Pittsburg, Jan. 16.—Vincent Vencelsiek, a Pole, went to his home on Spring alley intoxicated, killed his wife with a rail cutter, and hanged his three sleeping children in a frightful manner. There is very little hope of their recovery.

Lady Roberts' Niece Dead.

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 16.—Mrs. Alice M. Johnstone, a niece of Lady Roberts, died here Wednesday of nephritis following an operation for appendicitis. Mrs. Johnstone was born in Ireland 45 years ago and came to America in 1890.

THREE CHICAGO DOCTORS

Failed to Do for Miss Mabelle L. LaMonte What Was Accomplished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

monthly periods for it meant a couple of days in bed in awful agony. I finally made up my mind that the good doctors were guessing; and hearing from different friends such good reports of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I tried that. I bless the day I did, for it was the dawning of a new life for me. I used five bottles before I was cured, but when they were taken I was a well woman once more. Your Compound is certainly wonderful. Several of my friends have used it since, and nothing but the best do I ever hear from its use."—Yours, MABELLE L. ## WHICHEVER WAY.

Whichever way I turn my eyes,
Or listen with a hearing ear,
Nature prepares some sweet surprise
Of sight or sound to soothe and cheer.

The emerald gleam on mossy stem,
The rough red-brown of northern pine,
The tender pinky-white of birch;
These and a thousand joys are mine.

Dew-pearls and diamonds scattered free,
A myriad gems, a shimmering bliss,
The magic of a frosted tree;
What are the Orient values to this?

The fairy sprays in mossy bed,
The half-blown primrose faintly sweet,
The bright-veined ivy brown and red;
These are the treasures at our feet.

The trailing garlands of the rose,
Fit for the pearly gate of Heaven;
The glory that at sunset glows
Like benediction freely given.

The ripple of a tiny brook,
The deep-toned murmur of the sea;
Page after page of Nature's book,
A wondrous choral symphony.

The colors on a crumbling wall,
The shadow of a leafless bough;
Beauty abounds in great and small,
God-given wine to cheer us now.

The silent beauty of the night,
The solemn stillness of the morn,
The colors paling into light,
The joyous songs at day new born.

The lights and shadows in the wood,
The thousand voices of the spring,
When all creation seemeth good,
And joy in every living thing.

The beauty and the tender grace
Are earnest of a brighter day;
In golden outlines we can trace
A land not "very far away."

CHAPTER III.—CONTINUED.

"I thank you for the chance," said Dason, and knelt and offered his neck to the ax. So Tob cut off his head, sticking it on the galley's beam as an advertisement of what had been done. The body he threw over the side, and one of the great man-eating birds that hovered near picked it up and flew away with it to its nest among the crags. And so we were free to get a meal of the fruits and the fresh meats which the galley offered, while the ear-slaves sent the galley rushing onward towards the capital.

There was a wine-skin in the after-castle, and I filled a horn and poured some out at Tob's feet in salutation. "My man," I said, "you have shown me a fight."

"Thanks," said he, "and I know you are a judge. 'Twas pretty while it lasted, and seeing that my lads were, for the most, scurvy-rotten, I will say they fought with credit. I have lost my Lord Tatho's navy, but I think Phorenice will see me righted there. If those that are against her took so much trouble to kill my Lord Deucalion before he could come to her aid, I can fancy she will not be niggard in her joy when I put Deucalion safe, if somewhat dented and blood-bespattered, on the quay."

"The gods know," I said, for it is never my custom to discuss policies with my inferiors, even though etiquette be for the moment loosened, as ours was then by the thrill of battle. "The gods will decide what is best for you, Tob, even as they have decided that it is best that I should go on to Atlantis."

The sailor held a horn filled from the wine-skin in his hand, and I think was minded to pour a libation at my feet, even as I had done at his. But he changed his mind, and emptied it down his throat instead. "It is thirsty work, this fighting," he said, "and that drink comes very useful."

I put my hand on his blood-smeared arm. "Tob," I said, "whether I step into power again, or whether I go to the block to-morrow, is another matter which the gods alone know, but hear me tell you now, that if a chance is given me of showing my gratitude, I shall not forget the way you have served me in this voyage, and the way you have fought this day."

Tob filled another brimming horn from the wine-skin and splashed it at my feet. "That's good enough surety for me," he said, "that my woman and brats never want from this day onward. The Lord Deucalion for the block, indeed!"

CHAPTER IV.

THE WELCOME OF PHORENICE.

The splendid city grew out of the sea as we approached, and to every throb of the oars the shores leaped nearer. I saw the temple where I had been admitted first to manhood; I saw the pyramid in whose heart I had been initiated to the small mysteries; and then (as the lesser objects became discernible) I made out the house where a father and a mother had reared me, and my eyes became dim as the memories rose.

It has been said that the great should always collect dignity by keeping those of lesser degree waiting their pleasure, though for myself I must say I have always thought the stratagem paltry and beneath me. Phorenice also seemed of this same opinion, for (as she herself told me later) at the moment that Tob's galley was reported as having its flank against the marble of the royal quay, at that precise moment did she start out from the palace. The gorgeous procession was already marshalled, bedecked and waiting only for its chief ornament; and as soon as she had mounted to her steed, trumpets gave the order, and the advance began.

Sitting in the doorway of a pavilion by the water's edge, I saw the soldiery who turned the head of this vast concourse emerge from the great broad street where it left the houses. They marched straight across to give me the salute, and then ranged themselves on the further side of the square. Then came to the Mariners' Guild, then more soldiers, all making obeisance in their turn, and passing on to make room for others. Following were the merchants, the tanners, the spear-makers and all the other acknowledged guilds, deliberately attired (so it seemed to me) that they might make a pageant; and while most walked on foot, there were some who proudly rode on beasts which they had tamed into rendering them this menial service.

But presently came the two wonders of all that dazzling spectacle. From out of the eclipse of the houses there swung into the open no less a beast than a huge bull mammoth. The sight had sufficient surprise in it almost to make me start. Many a time during my life had I led hunts to kill the mammoth, when a herd of them had raided some village or corn land under my charge. I had seen the huge brutes in the wild ground, shaggy, horrid, monstrous; more fierce even than the cave-tiger or the cave-bear; most dangerous beast of all that fight with man for dominion of the earth, save only for a few of the greater lizards. And here was this creature, a giant even among mammoths, yet tame as any well-whipped slave, and bearing upon its back a great half-castle of gold, stamped with the outstretched hand, and bedecked with silver snakes. Its murderous tusks were gilded, its hairy neck was garlanded with flowers, and it trod on in the procession as though assisting at such pageantry was the beginning and end of its existence. Its tameness seemed a fitting symbol of the masterful strength of this new ruler of Atlantis.

Simultaneously with the mammoth there came into sight that other and greater wonder, the mammoth's mistress, the Empress Phorenice. The beast took my eye at the first, from its very uncouth hugeness, from its show of savage power restrained; but the lady who sat in the golden half-castle on its lofty back quickly drew away my gaze, and held it immovable from then onward with an infinite attraction.

I stood to my feet when the people first shouted at Phorenice's approach, and remained in the porchway of my scarlet pavilion till her vast steed had halted in the center of the square, and then I advanced across the pavement towards her.

"On your knee, my lord," said one of the chamberlains behind me, in a scared whisper.

"At least with bent head," urged another.

But I had my own notions of what is due to one's own self-respect in these matters, and I marched across the bare open space with head erect, giving the empress gaze for gaze. She was clearly summing me up. I was frankly doing the like by her. Gods! but those few short seconds made me see a woman as such I never imagined could have lived.

I know I have placed it on record earlier in this writing that, during all the days of a long official life, women have had no influence over me. But I have been quick to see that they often had a strong swaying power over the policies of others, and as a consequence I have made it my business to study them even as I have studied men. But this woman who sat under the sacred snakes in her golden half-castle on the mammoth's back fairly baffled me. Of her thoughts I could read no single syllable. I could see a body, slight, supple and beautifully molded; in figure rather small. Her face was a most perfect book of cleverness, yet she was fair, too, beyond belief, with hair of a lovely ruddiness, cut short in the new fashion, and bunching on her shoulders. And eyes! Gods! who could plumb the depths of Phorenice's eyes, or find in mere tint a trace of their heaven-made color?

It was plain, also, that she in her turn was searching me down to my very soul, and it seemed that her scrutiny was not without its satisfaction. She moved her head in little nods as I drew near, and when I did the requisite obeisance permitted to my rank, she bade me, in a voice loud and clear enough for all at hand to hear, never to put forehead on the ground again on her behalf so long as she ruled in Atlantis.

"For others," she said, "it is fitting that they should do so, once, twice, or several times, according to their rank and station, for I am empress, and they are all so far beneath me; but you are Deucalion, my lord; and though till to-day I knew you only from pictures drawn with tongues, I have seen you now, and have judged for myself. And so I make this decree: Deucalion is above all other men in Atlantis, and if there is one who does not render him obedience, that man is enemy also of Phorenice, and shall feel her anger."

She made a sign, and a stair was brought, and then she called to me, and I mounted and sat beside her in the golden half-castle under the canopy of royal snakes. The girl who stood behind in attendance fanned us both with perfumed feathers, and at a word from Phorenice the mammoth was turned, bearing us back towards the royal pyramid by the way through which it had come. At the same time also all the other machinery of splendor was put in motion. The soldiers and the gaudily bedecked civil traders fell into procession before and behind, and I noted that a body of troops, heavily armed, marched on each of the mammoth's flanks.

Phorenice turned to me with a smile. "You piqued me," she said, "at first."

"Your majesty overwhelms me with so much notice."

"You looked at my steed before you looked at me. A woman finds it hard to forgive a slight like that."

"I envied you the greatest of your conquests, and do still. I have fought mammoths myself, and at times have killed, but I never dared even to think of taking one alive and bringing it into tameness."

"You speak boldly," she said, still smiling, "and yet you can turn a pretty compliment. Faugh! Deucalion, the way these people fawn on me gives me a nausea. I am not of the same clay as they are, I know; but just because I am the daughter of gods they must needs feed me on the pap of insincerity."

So Tatho was right, and the swine-herd was forgotten. Well, if she chose to keep up the fiction she had made, it was not my part to contradict her. Nightly or wrongly, she was empress, and without competitor, and anyway I was her servant.

"I have been pining this long enough for a stronger meat than they can give," she went on, "and at last I have sent for you. I have been at some pains to procure my tongue-pictures of you, Deucalion, and though you do not know me yet, I may say I knew you with all thoroughness even before we met. I can admire a man with a mind great enough to forego the silly gauds of clothes, or the excesses of feasts, or the pamperings of women." She looked down at her own silks and her glittering jewels. "We women like to carry colors upon our persons, but that is a different matter. And so I sent for you here to be my minister, and bear with me the burden of ruling."

"There should be better men in broad Atlantis."

"There are not, my lord, and I who know them all by heart tell you so. They are all enamored of my poor person; they weary me with their empty phrases and their importunities; and, though they are always brimming with their cries of service, their own advancement and the filling of their own treasuries ever come first with them. So I have sent for you, Deucalion, the one strong man in all the world. You at least will not sigh to be my lover?"

I saw her watching for my answer from the corners of her eyes. "The empress," I said, "is my mistress, and I will be an honest minister to her. With Phorenice, the woman, it is likely that I shall have little enough to do. Besides, I am not the sort that sport with this toy they call love."

"And yet you are a personable man enough," she said, rather thoughtfully. "But that still further proves your strength, Deucalion. You at least will not lose your head through weak infatuation for my poor looks and graces." She turned to the girl who stood behind us. "Ylga, fan not so violently."

Our talk broke off then for the moment, and I had time to look about me. We were passing through the chief street in the fairest, the most wonderful city this world has ever seen. I had left it a score of years before, and was curious to note its increase.

In public buildings the city had certainly made growth; there were new temples, new pyramids, new palaces, and statuary everywhere. Its greatness and magnificence impressed me more strongly even than usual, returning to it as I did from such a distance of time and space, for, though the many cities of Yucatan might each of them be princely, this great capital was a place not to be compared with any of them. It was imperial and gorgeous beyond descriptive words.

Yet most of all was I struck by the poverty and squalor which stood in such close touch with all this magnificence. In the throngs that lined the streets there were gaunt bodies and hungry faces everywhere. Here and there stood one, a man or a woman, as naked as a savage in Europe, and yet dull to shame. Even the trader, with trumpety gauds on his coat, aping the prevailing fashion for display, had a scared, uneasy look on his face, as though he had forgotten the mere name of safety, and hid his frantic heart with his tawdry outward vauntings of prosperity.

Phorenice read the direction of my looks.

"The season," she said, "has been unhealthy of recent months. These lower people will not build fine houses to adorn my city, and because they choose to live on in their squalid, unsightly kennels, there have been calamities and other sicknesses among them, which make them disinclined for work. And then, too, for the moment, earning is not easy. Indeed, you may say trade is nearly stopped this last half-year since the rebels have been hammering so lustily at my city gates."

I fairly started out of my decorum.

"Rebels!" I cried, "who are hammering at the gates of Atlantis? Is the city in a state of siege?"

"Of their condescension," said Phorenice, lightly, "they are giving us holiday to-day, and so, happily, my welcome to you comes undisturbed. If they were fighting, your ears would have told you of it. To give them their due, they are acting enough in all their efforts. My spies say they are making ready new engines for use against the walls, which you may sally out to-morrow and break if it gives you amusement. But for to-day, Deucalion, I have you, and you have me, and there is peace round us, and some prettiness of display. If you ask for more I will give it you."

"I did not know of this rebellion," I said, "but as your majesty has made me your minister, it is well that I should know all about its scope at once. This is a matter we should be serious upon."

"And do you think I cannot take it seriously also?" she retorted. "Ylga," she said to the girl that stood behind, "set loose my dress at the shoulder."

And when the attendant had unlinked the jeweled clasp (as it seemed to me with a very ill grace), she herself stripped down the fabric, baring the pure skin beneath, and showing me just below the curve of her left breast a bandage of blood-stained linen.

"There is a guarantee of my seriousness yesterday, at any rate," she said, looking at me sidelong. "The arrow struck on a rib, and that saved me. If it had struck below, Deucalion would have been standing beside my funeral-pyre to-day, instead of riding on this pretty steed of mine which he admires so much. Your eye seems to feast itself most on the mammoth. Deucalion. Ah, poor me. I am not one of your shaggy creatures, and so it seems I shall never be able to catch your regard, Ylga," she said to the girl behind, "you may link my dress up again with its clasp. My Lord Deucalion has seen wounds before, and there is nothing else here to interest him."

Eating for a Husband.

When the parents of a young man in Russia decide that a certain young lady would make a suitable mate for him they say nothing about the matter to anyone, but on some evening they will drop around unexpectedly to the prospective bride's home and will stay for supper. During the meal they will keep a close watch on the young lady. If she eats fast she will perform her work speedily, if she goes neatly and cleanly about her plate she will perform her work neatly and cleanly; if she does not talk much she will work and not talk and prove a faithful and obedient wife to her husband; if she prefers rye bread to white she will be satisfied with her lot; if she does not gaze and stare at the visitors she will be a wife that will not continually pry into her husband's business, and if she immediately proceeds to clean up the dishes after the meal she will bring prosperity to her husband and will be economical with his money. A most peculiar thing about the marriage ceremony is the fact that when the couple enter the church both groom and bride make a dash for the platform on which the pulpit. It is believed that the one whose foot touches the platform first will live the longer and the children will take after that one in size, health and beauty.—N. O. Picayune.

Nice Turkish Customs.

It is said by a correspondent of the London Telegraph that the habits of the Turkish ladies in Constantinople are wonderfully fastidious. When they wash their hands at a tap from which water runs into a marble basin, they let the water run till a servant shuts it off, as to do this themselves would make them unclean. They cannot open or shut a door, as the handle would be unclean.

One of these fastidious ladies was talking to a small niece the other day, who had just received a present of a doll from Paris. By and by the child laid the doll on the lady's lap. She was horrified, and ordered the child to take it away.

As the little girl would not move it, and no servant was near, and the lady would be defiled by touching a doll that had been brought from abroad, the only thing she could think of was to jump up and let the doll fall. It broke in pieces.

The same lady will not open a letter coming by post, but a servant opens it and holds it near for her to read. If her handkerchief falls to the ground it is immediately destroyed or given away, so that she may not again use it. Among these men this curious state of things does not exist.

Settling Accounts.

In Burnaby's "Travels in America in 1759" the following incident is related: "The captain of a British man-of-war cruising off the Massachusetts coast left his wife in Boston. One of his visits to port she came down to the wharf to meet him, and she was saluted as a true and loving sailor's wife deserved. This violation of law was at once reported, and the captain was brought before the magistrate and sentenced to be publicly whipped. There was no getting out of it, and the captain submitted quite gracefully. Just before the departure of his ship he gave an elaborate entertainment, to which all of the magistrates were invited. After the festivities were over and everyone had shaken hands with the captain and was going over the side, the magistrates were seized by the arm and stripped to the waist. Each one was led to the gangway, where a vigorous boatswain gave him 31 lashes on the bare back, and then hustled him over into a boat, amid the cheers of the whole ship's company."

Feminine Desperate Desire.

"Bessie, what do you want for your birthday?"

"Pa, I want t' be a boy, an' g' fishin' 'bout nobody t' boss me."

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Senate.—The open session of the senate Thursday was devoted to routine business. After an executive session the senate at 1:50 adjourned until Monday.

House.—The Hepburn Nicaragua canal bill passed the house late Thursday afternoon by practically a unanimous vote. Only two members out of 310 voted against it. Messrs. Fletcher (rep., Minn.) and Lassiter (dem., W. Va.), were the two voting in the negative. The opposition to committing the government to the Nicaragua route attempted to secure amendments to lodge with the president the discretionary power to purchase and complete the Panama canal, if it could be purchased for $40,000,000. The test came on the first vote when the advocates of an alternative route polled the two against 170 votes.

Washington, Jan. 11.—House.—The house spent Friday considering the Hopkins bill to create a permanent census bureau. Bills introduced: Continuing in force all laws prohibiting the coming of Chinese; providing a salary for ex-presidents of the United States at the rate of $25,000 annually, from the date of retirement from the presidency. The bill is to apply to any ex-president living at the time the law is enacted. A bill was passed unanimously to give Mrs. McKinley the free mailing privileges during the remainder of her life. The house then adjourned until Monday.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Senate.—Monday Mr. Nelson (Minn.) called up the bill providing for the establishment of a department of commerce. The bill, after discussion, went over, subject to call by Mr. Nelson. The senate was in executive session for an hour and a half. The Hepburn Nicaragua canal bill was received by the senate from the house Monday and referred to the committee on inter-oceanic canals.

House.—The house of representatives spent the day in general discussion of the pension appropriation bill, the first of the annual budgets. The debate took a wide range. Mr. Grosvenor (O.) and Mr. Hepburn (Ia.) denounced a report presented to the last G. A. R. encampment criticizing the course of themselves and other members of congress on the veteran "preference" bill which was defeated at the last session.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Senate.—For the first time this season the Philippine question was touched on in the senate. The interest taken indicates that it will occupy the attention of the upper branch of congress for some time when the tariff bill is reported. The Philippines were the subject of an address by Mr. Hoar (Mass.), who spoke on his resolution introduced Monday providing for the appointment of the senate committee to investigate the administration of these islands. Senator Proctor introduced a bill providing for the repeal of that portion of the act of February 2, 1901, relating to the army which requires that chiefs of staff of corps or departments shall be appointed from the officers of such staff.

House.—The house continued the debate on the pension appropriation bill Tuesday and devoted much time to the proposition advanced by Mr. Rixey (Va.) Monday, to open the doors of soldiers' homes to ex-confederate veterans. Two notable speeches were made in support of the proposition, one by Mr. Gardner (rep., Mich.) and the other by Mr. Dearmond (dem., Mo.). Mr. Lamb (Va.) read a number of telegrams from prominent ex-confederates of Richmond protesting against it.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Senate.—The bill which Senator Hale introduced authorizes the creation of a naval reserve of not to exceed 20,000 men and 600 officers, the men to receive $50 and the officers from $100 to $200 annually. Another bill authorized the organization of a naval reserve from honorably discharged sailors, but does not fix the number. A spirited discussion was precipitated in the senate by some remarks submitted by Mr. Hale (Me.) in respect to these bills.

House.—The house passed the pension appropriation bill, which has been under discussion for three days, and then adjourned until Saturday. The resolution prepared by the special committee on the McKinley memorial exercises, providing for an address by Secretary of State John Hay in the hall of representatives on February 27, was adopted. A bill was passed to allow the redemption of war revenue stamps any time within two years after the passage of the act, and also a resolution on the same subject to authorize the secretary of the treasury to return upon demand, within one year, bank checks and drafts with war revenue stamps imprinted thereon after the cancellation of such stamps.

KING EDWARD'S CORONATION.

Hon. Whitelaw Reid Has Been Selected as Special Ambassador.

Help... Nature

Babies and children need proper food, rarely ever medicine. If they do not thrive on their food something is wrong. They need a little help to get their digestive machinery working properly.

OF
WITH HYPOPHOSPHITES OF LIME & SODA

will generally correct this difficulty.

If you will put from one-fourth to half a teaspoonful in baby's bottle three or four times a day you will soon see a marked improvement. For larger children, from half to a teaspoonful, according to age, dissolved in their milk, if you so desire, will very soon show its great nourishing power. If the mother's milk does not nourish the baby, she needs the emulsion. It will show an effect at once both upon mother and child.

Care in Making Axes.

An ax is subject to rigid tests before it is pronounced perfect. The steel must be of the required temper, the weight of all axes of the same size must be uniform, all must be ground alike and in various other ways conform to an established standard. The inspector who tests the quality of the steel does so by hammering the blade and striking the edge to ascertain whether it be too brittle or not. An ax that breaks during the test is thrown aside to be made over. Before the material of an ax is in the proper shape it has been heated five times, including the tempering process, and the ax when completed has passed through the hands of about 40 workmen, each of whom has done something toward perfecting it. After passing inspection the axes go to the grinding department and from that to the polishers, who finish them upon emery wheels.

MAGNETIC OBSERVATORY.

Description of One to Be Erected at Sitka.

A dispatch from Sitka to the San Francisco Chronicle says that the government will soon commence the construction there of a magnetic observatory for the terrestrial division of the coast survey. The observatory is one of four to be constructed by the government for the purpose of defining the deviation of the magnetic pole from the true north and will be one of the greatest importance to the coast survey in marking mariners' courses on the charts. At present it is known that charts ten or more years old are in many cases worthless owing to the deviation of the magnetic pole. It is to overcome this and correct errors in charts that the observatories are to be built. One is in operation at Cheltenham, Md., one is to be erected on the north Atlantic coast, one in Sitka and one in Honolulu.

The construction of the observatory involves infinite pains to insure the interior free from all effects of heat, cold and dampness. The walls, roof and floor will be of extraordinary thickness, packed with sawdust and having air spaces between the walls. Inside there will be a room containing the delicate mechanism necessary for the investigation. This mechanism will consist of small magnets suspended by mineral fibers. To each magnet will be attached a tiny mirror, on which a ray of light will be allowed to fall. This ray of light will be reflected on a slowly revolving cylinder covered with sensitized photographic paper. By this method the lateral deviation as well as the dip of the magnetic pole from the true north can be noted and allowances made. Dr. H. W. M. Edmonds of the coast survey is in charge of the work.

IRRIGATION RESERVOIRS.

Congress to Be Asked to Make Appropriations.

A popular movement in certain parts of the west is apt to have considerable attention before the next congress. It will be in favor of appropriation by the national government for the construction of irrigation reservoirs and attendant works for the reclamation of arid lands, says the Washington Star. Such work would open up an immense and rich field for settlement, and the land would be far more productive than is other land on the plains.

So productive will be this irrigated land that the extent of a homestead will doubtless be reduced to 40 instead of 160 acres, as many of those familiar with irrigated land of the kind of the millions of acres that could be made available in the west declare that one acre will be far more productive than four acres under ordinary conditions. More crops can be raised and with practically an assurance against failures. This movement for national appropriations for irrigating work will be opposed by men from some states, who will plead for "economy," and by many farmers of the middle west and east who do not care about increasing the competition they now have in the raising of cereals.

Rheumatism

Rheumatic pains are the cries of protest and distress from tortured muscles, aching joints and excited nerves. The blood has been poisoned by the accumulation of waste matter in the system, and can no longer supply the pure and health sustaining food they require. The whole system feels the effect of this acid poison; and not until the blood has been purified and brought back to a healthy condition will the aches and pains cease.

Mrs. James Kell, of 707 Ninth street, N. E., Washington, D. C., writes as follows: "A few months ago I had an attack of Sciatic Rheumatism in its worst form. The pain was so intense that I became completely prostrated. The attack was an unusually severe one, and my condition was regarded as being very dangerous. I was attended by one of the most able doctors in Washington, who is a member of the faculty of a leading medical college here. He told me to continue his prescriptions and I would get well. After having filled twelve times without receiving the slightest benefit, I declined to continue his treatment any longer. Having heard of S. S. S. (Swift's Specific) recommended for Rheumatism, I decided, almost in despair however, to give the medicine a trial, and after I had taken a few bottles I was able to hobble around on crutches, and very soon thereafter had no use for them at all. S. S. S. having cured me sound and well. All the distressing pains have left me, my appetite has returned, and I am happy to be again restored to perfect health."

SSS is the great vegetable purifier and tonic, is the ideal remedy in all rheumatic troubles. There are no opiates or minerals in it to disturb the digestion and lead to ruinous habits.

We have prepared a special book on Rheumatism which every sufferer from this painful disease should read. It is the most complete and interesting book of the kind in existence. It will be sent free to any one desiring it. Write our physicians fully and freely about your case. We make no charge for medical advice.

Crude Petroleum.

From crude petroleum are made kerosene, gasoline, naphtha, paraffin and vaseline. A still heavier oil, left as a residue, is used for axle grease, and the carbon is turned into sticks for electric lights. The sulphuric acid which is used for purifying the products of petroleum is recovered and turned into fertilizer for farms where there is too much phosphate rock, which is thus dissolved.

Writing For Money.

Fond Father—Yes, my boy at the variety has written several articles for the magazines.

"What do you mean by 'professional'?"

"Why, he doesn't write for money?"

"Doesn't he? You ought to see some of his letters to me."—Exchange.

Willie's Idea.

"Isn't it awful how thin Mr. Henpeck is now?" remarked Mrs. Gabbler to her husband. "And he used to be so stout."
"Perhaps," chimed in little Willie, remembering his trouble with his bicycle tires—"perhaps his wife forgets to blow him up regular, like you said she used to." Philadelphia Press.

ARE YOU DEAF? ANY HEAD NOISES?

ALL CASES OF
DEAFNESS OR HARD HEARING
ARE NOW CURABLE
by our new invention. Only those born deaf are incurable.
HEAD NOISES CEASE IMMEDIATELY.
F. A. WERMAN, OF BALTIMORE, SAYS:

Gentlemen:—Being entirely cured of deafness, thanks to your treatment, I will now give you a full history of my case, to be used at your discretion.

About five years ago my right ear began to ring, and this kept on getting worse, until I lost my hearing in this ear entirely.

I underwent a treatment for catarrh, for three months, without any success, consulted a number of physicians, among others, the most eminent ear specialist of this city, who told me that only an operation could help me, and even that only temporarily, that the head noises would then cease, but the hearing in the affected ear would be lost forever.

I then saw your advertisement, accidentally in a New York paper, and ordered your treatment. After I had used it only a few days according to your directions, the noises ceased, and to-day, after five weeks, my hearing in the diseased ear has been entirely restored. I thank you heartily and beg to remain

Very truly yours,

Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for over thirty years. It has kept my scalp free from dandruff and has prevented my hair from turning gray."—Mrs. F. A. Soule, Billings, Mont.

There is this peculiar thing about Ayer's Hair Vigor—it is a hair food, not a dye. Your hair does not suddenly turn black, look dead and lifeless. But gradually the old color comes back,—all the rich, dark color it used to have. The hair stops falling, too.

Small Fortune in a Wheat Bin.

John Walum, a farmer near Lacrosse, Wis., found the other day in a bin of wheat a sack of gold, notes and securities placed there by his father, who died over two years ago, says the New York Times. Ever since the death of his father Mr. Walum had been looking for money which he was convinced his father had concealed somewhere on the farm. While measuring wheat preparatory to taking it to market the son found the sack of money and securities, the value of which runs over $2,000.

As She Saw It.

Mrs. Kleener—What is the matter with you this evening, John, that you ain't smoking?

Mr. Kleener—The doctor says I mustn't. He says I must stop smoking or die.

Mrs. Kleener—Oh, I'm so glad! You won't be scenting up my curtains any more, will you?—Boston Transcript.
